

If information is the currency of democracy and local media provides local information then every town should have a 'mint'.